

“Wheel of Fortune”

7th & 8th Grade Anatomy Vocabulary Review

1. One student gets to be “Vanna” and writes out the blanks on the board for the “Phrase that Pays” along with the whole alphabet in block letters. (No one else sees the answers.)
1. Another student, the first ASKER reads the DEFINITION of the first Anatomy & Physiology term (“Aqueous Humor”) from the “7-8th Grade A & P” page to the next person in the row.
2. If the ANSWERER answers correctly, s/he gets to pick a letter from the block letters on the board. Vanna crosses off the letter chosen and fills in the corresponding blank, OR announces there aren’t any of that letter in the puzzle. The answerer may try to guess the Phrase if s/he chooses before moving on to the next person’s turn. (If the ANSWERER answers INcorrectly, s/he doesn’t get to pick a letter of course.)
3. The ASKER hands the “7-8th Grade A & P” page to the ANSWERER who becomes the NEW ASKER and reads the next DEFINITION (or the same one if s/he got it wrong) to the next student. Continue to ask the SAME question UNTIL it is guessed correctly.
4. Continue until all A & P vocabulary words are covered.
5. If all words are covered and the Phrase is not guessed yet, start over from the beginning of the A & P list (re-review).
6. If the “Phrase that Pays” is guessed before the whole A & P list is asked, use one of the alternative Phrases until the A & P list has been used at least once.

The Phrase that Pays:

IT ONLY TAKES A SECOND TO PROTECT OR LOSE YOUR SIGHT.

Alternate Phrases:

YOU HAVE ONLY ONE PAIR OF EYES FOREVER.

FRIENDS DON’T LET FRIENDS GO BLIND.
