

Lung & Heart-Lung Transplant Program Cardiothoracic Surgeon

Alistair Phillips, MD

Alistair Phillips, MD completed his undergraduate training in biomedical engineering at The Johns Hopkins University. He received his medical school training at The College of Physicians & Surgeons of Columbia University. He then completed residency training in General Surgery and Cardiothoracic Surgery at New York Presbyterian – Cornell Medical Center. During this time he also completed two years of research in Cardiac Physiology. He continued on to complete training fellowships in Pacemakers/Defibrillators and Pediatric Cardiac Surgery at the New York Presbyterian – Columbia Medical Center. Dr. Phillips is board certified in both Surgery and Thoracic Surgery. His clinical interests include heart and lung transplantation, congenital heart disease, and congenital thoracic disorders. His research interests focus on; inflammation and post-operative arrhythmias, right ventricular morphology and the cardiopulmonary system in severe pulmonary disease (i.e. cystic fibrosis, pulmonary hypertension, etc.)