

Our Listening Sounds Come to Town

The Ling Six Sound Test (Ling 1976, 1989) can be used by anyone and can help determine a child's ability to hear across low, medium, and high frequencies.

One day long ago, there was a town that lost all their listening sounds.

All the people in the town were sad, so they went on a listening hunt.

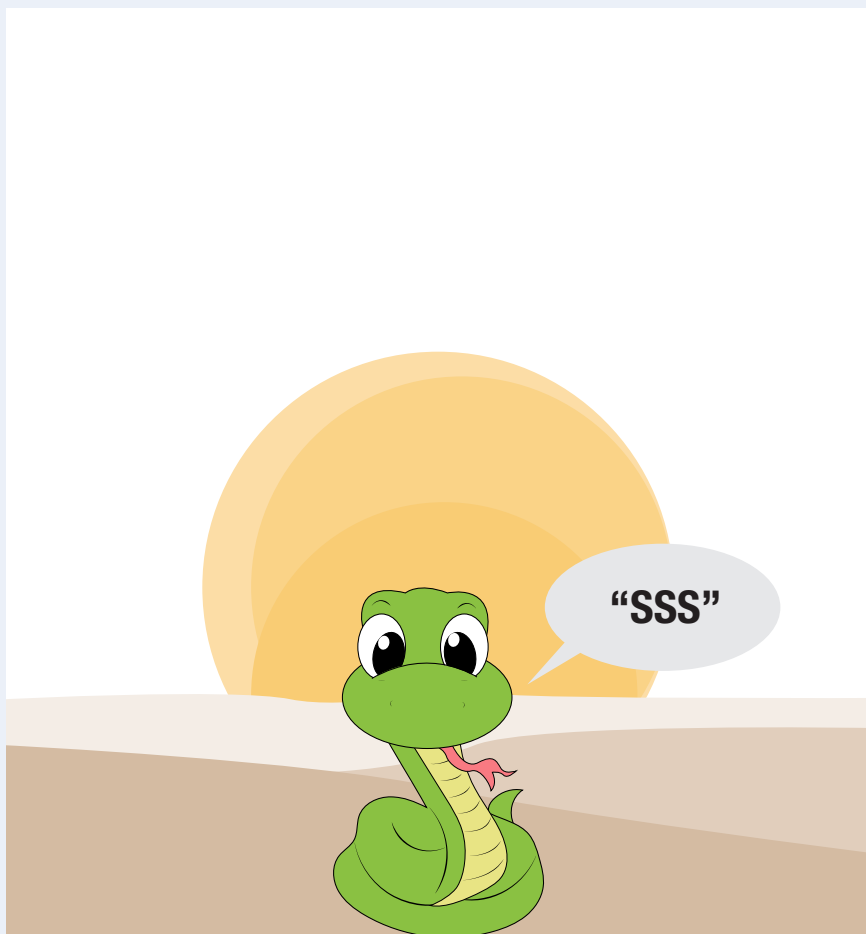

First, they went to the forest, and found their listening ghost.

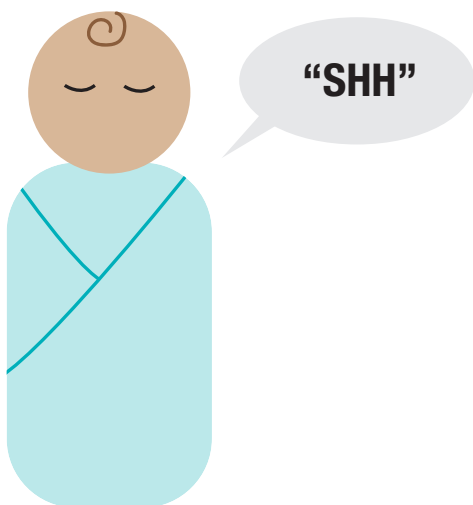

Then, they went to the field and found their listening mouse.

They looked up into the sky and found their listening airplane!

Next, they went to the desert and found their listening snake.

They went home and found their listening baby doll.

Finally, they found some listening ice cream and sat down for a treat.

The town was so happy to have all of their listening sounds back again.
