

Limit Total Screen Time To 2 Hours A Day

Why limit daily screen time to 2 hours?

- Physical activity, along with healthy eating habits, is a sure path to maintain good health
- For kids, doctors recommend 60 minutes of moderate to vigorous physical activity everyday
- Being active increases endurance, flexibility and strength
- Active children usually have improved coordination, feel better about themselves and can do better in school
- Physical activity burns calories and exercises the muscles
- Active children are less likely to be depressed or anxious
- Active children have reduced risk of developing diabetes, asthma, and heart disease as they get older

What Your Family Can Do

- Get up and keep moving while watching TV or playing video games
- Make it a goal: move during commercials
- Stay active throughout the day: park farther away, take the stairs, get off the bus one stop earlier, walk
- Make moving fun: dance to music, try a new fitness video, play musical chairs, simon says, four square, tag, or make active rules for card and board games

Quick Tips

- Limit how long and how often you spend in front of the TV or the computer
- Set clear limits on TV watching, video games and computer time
- Turn off the TV or computer for a whole day, at least one day a week
- Be active during commercials by seeing how many push-ups, jumping jacks, arm circles or sit-ups you can do before the commercial is over
- Don't eat in front of the TV or computer
